BLUE STORKS FAIRY TAIL

Once upon a time, when there were forests in the world instead of roads when the landscape was intersected by deep valleys instead of dams, and  were towering toward the sky, all storks were blue. It wasn't ordinary blue, it was extraordinary. You bet each stork was proud of his feathers. The stork blue reflected in all directions in the sunshine, glittering skyward, and anyone who looked up in the sky could not take his eyes off the beautiful sky, and even more beautiful storks.

One day a stork nicknamed the Turquoise  flew across the sea. He looked down and admired his colourful body reflecting on the surface. And he was not alone, as most storks liked the same image. After a while, an  , a guard of the air currents, a king of fast flights, and a bird wizard appeared beside the Turquoise .

"Where are you heading?" asked the .

"I do not even know. I was heading far beyond the  , but he couldn't stop watching myself, so I just circle around it," the  replied.

"Don't be so proud, it will rebound on you," the  urged the Stork.

"Don't worry, nothing can happen to me. No one dares to endanger such a beautiful bird like me," said the  with conceit.

"You are the greatest danger to yourself. With this approach, you just get into trouble. And not only you! I'm warning you. You will be punished if you do not change your attitude," the  thundered.

But the Stork ignored the words of the  . He kept flying around the  until he was at the end of his tether. The next morning he flew out of his  and returned to the same place. He kept flying and watching himself. He couldn't stop admiring himself. This time, more storks joined him. In a sudden gust of wind, the Stork called Turquoise  did not concentrate on his flight, but once again he was staring at himself. It was a fatal mistake. The wind blew him to the side. He crashed right into the  hitting more storks.

The wounded stork had barely reached the land. Lots of his friends had the same difficulties. The  had been watching them from a distance, knowing what was going to happen. He flew back to the Turquoise  and kept his promise.

"Pride comes before a fall. You were aware of it, as well as your friends. You will remember this moment forever, and I hope you will learn from it. From now on you will lose your blue colour. No one will ever see a blue stork. Your colours will be black and white. Black will be a reminder of your pride, white will be a reminder of modesty you should achieve," said the  . And so it happened.

Funny Counting

Many birds take long trails during their migration. When you solve the following exercise, you will reveal the names of migratory birds. You might be lucky to find them in the Czech Republic.
